Recommendation for Stephane Jacquet

To Whom it may Concern,

I am writing to recommend Mr Stephane Jacquet for a teaching post at your university. Mr Jacquet taught English for Academic Purposes (EAP) as part of De Montfort University's Centre for English Language Learning (CELL) for five years from 2014 to 2018, teaching each from July to September each year.

CELL is accredited by the British Council for the teaching of English, and during his time with us, Mr Jacquet proved himself to be a highly competent, thoughtful and hard-working tutor and colleague. His responsibilities included planning and delivering classes in EAP for classes of around 20 international students, drawn mostly from China, but including students from many other countries. As such, besides teaching them key academic skills such as essay writing, in-text referencing and hedging, Mr Jacquet also demonstrated strong intercultural skills in helping students understand and adjust to what was often a very different culture from what they had been familiar with, both in general terms and academically.

Mr Jacquet never failed to conduct himself professionally and courteously, and was a valued member of our team, able to maintain a strong rapport with students and tutors alike. I have no reservation in recommending him to you.

Kind Regards,

Mr Philip Rule
